

AUBURNDALE

Everybody in the Auburndale district is sorry to hear that Miss Lily Harris, teacher of Heatherbell School, and Mr. Tommy Smith of Sisseton are in the Manville hospital suffering from injuries received in a car accident which occurred near Manville. All wish them a speedy recovery.

Mr. Wm. Cleland had his foot injured by a horse falling on it. The horse slipped in the mud while Mr. Cleland was riding it. It may be some days before Mr. Cleland is able to walk again.

The Rev. G. Magnus conducted a religious service in Auburndale school on Sunday evening, Oct. 6th. He preached on "Redemption." He predicted that great events would take place in 1936, manifestations from heaven, even the second coming of our Lord. He felt sure that the year 1936 would be a red letter year. Mr. Magnus will again hold a service in Auburndale school on Sunday evening, October 20th, at 8 o'clock. All are welcome.

Billy Eyben is back home on the farm and has quite recovered from his recent sick spell. He was in the Vermilion hospital three days. Geo. Eyben is home also and is steadily improving after his appendix operation.

The infantile paralysis quarantine has been lifted from the Symes home.

Mr. Alfred Green, previously of Auburndale, now of Vancouver, is a visitor in the district at present. Folks are always glad to see old-timers in their midst again.

Three of the young threshers while working on J. J. Eyben's threshing outfit at J. Kennedy's became ill with stomach flu, but they have all quite recovered now. Threshing in this district is now practically over.

Most people have their gardens in now, which yields well in spite of the cutworms in the spring and the frost in August. We dug up this year the largest parsnips we have ever seen.

Miss Ellie Cleland is at home again, after spending a month with Mrs. Harold Barlow of Cummings.

Mr. A. Titus acted as returning officer, and P. Richardson as polling clerk, at the polling station at Auburndale school on Saturday evening, October 12th. Other speakers accompanying Mr. Titus were: Mrs. A. Wilson of Edgerton and Mr. A. H. Wray, organizer for Social Credit. The party motored up from Lloydminster the same evening and stopped at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. Little of Cummings, where a sumptuous turkey dinner awaited them, after which they addressed the meeting at the hall.

Auburndale people who met Mr. Fair were delighted with him. A man of fine presence and quiet dignity. Studious, and with a courageous determination to follow the course that he feels is the right one. A man, we would judge, with the makings of a statesman in him. He was followed by Rev. H. A. Boyd of Vermillion, a large congregation being in attendance.

A memorial service was held in the Auburndale Church on Sunday afternoon, October 13th, for little Rita Symes. The service was conducted by Rev. G. Magnus.

SYDENHAM

Owing to bad weather conditions, all threshing has been closed down since Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. G. Carl spent Sunday at Gilt Edge, visiting with Mr. and Mrs. Ted Goddard.

The schoolhouse will open Monday October 14th, after being closed for a couple of weeks, in an effort to check the spread of infantile paralysis.

Miss June Seabrook spent a few days last week visiting with her sister, Mrs. Carl.

Mr. and Mrs. G. Alexander are spending a few days at Battleview during the threshing season.

TRAFALGAR

After spending a very pleasant visit with Mrs. D. Ratray, Miss Jessie Kay returned to her home in Edmonton.

The sympathy of the community is extended to Mrs. H. C. Akerooy, who underwent an operation for appendicitis on Friday. We wish her a speedy recovery.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Waddell and family, and the Misses B. Levigood and E. Hart, were guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. F. Perkins on Thursday evening.

 Some morning you will wake up and find winter has arrived! You had better haul out a load of good feed from the Atlas yard and be ready for the severe weather. Joe Welch.

HOPE VALLEY

Hope Valley supplied quite a large part of the crowd at Roy Carr's sale last Wednesday which went rather better than was expected.

Mr. Bud Haddock's little child that has paralysis is recovering and a complete recovery is looked for.

Mrs. Taylor is spending a few days with her daughter, Mrs. Gilbert at Saddle Hill.

We are glad to hear Mr. Wilson, who has been in the hospital for the past week, is now home again.

Schools in this district opened on Tuesday, after being closed for the past few weeks.

HEATH

Miss Mary Wallace was the guest of Mrs. Morton Herbert for the past week.

Mr. and Mrs. Anatole Touchette and family are making preparations to sell their holdings here and will take up their residence in the East. The district will be sorry to lose them and wish them prosperity in their new surroundings.

St. Patrick's W.A. will meet on Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Morton Herbert.

Mrs. Geo. Smith, who suffered a stroke recently was taken into Wainwright on Monday last and it is hoped her condition will improve.

Mr. and Mrs. W. L'Heureux journeyed to Edmonton over the week-end to attend the silver wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Williamson.

Heath and Arm Lake schools have been closed on account of infantile paralysis but are expected to open shortly.

SLIGO

The Harvest Home service was celebrated at the Rosedale United church on Sunday last.

Mrs. Postana had as her guests on Sunday Mr. and Mrs. B. McDougall and family from Loughheed, and Mr. and Mrs. Morrison and Lexie from Greenshields.

Mr. L. Wilson was taken suddenly ill last week while threshing and was rushed to the hospital in Wainwright. We wish him better.

The Sunnyvale U.F.W.A. held their regular meeting at the home of Mrs. Empey on Thursday. The regular business was discussed. Mrs. Warnock gave current events. The ladies planned for a concert and dance to take place in Rosedale Hall on November 15th.

Mrs. Reynolds, Eileen and Joyce, attended a shower at Mrs. Golding's last week given in honor of Misses Edie Russell and Alice Cooper, who are bride-elects of this month.

Miss N. Redmond who has been visiting relatives in this district for nearly a month, left Saturday night for her home in Vancouver.

Sympathies are extended to Burton James, who had the misfortune to break his arm.

AMONG THE OLD-TIMERS

—REMINISCERS OF OTHER DAYS—

15 YEARS AGO

The Wainwright Athletic Club pulled off a big meet in the big rink (since destroyed in the big fire) when a record crowd gathered for the affair.

The first school fair staged by the Edgerton School Board proved a real success.

Mr. and Mrs. Rinas, who previously left for the States, returned here and bought another farm in the district upon which they plan to stay.

A move by the Community League for the establishment of a gymnasium in town is going over big, with a great interest being taken by both old and young.

The U.F.W.A. are arranging for the opening of a restroom in town.

Mrs. S. R. Bowerman, who has been very sick for the past two weeks is reported convalescing.

Mr. Fred Ganderon reports 17,410 bushels of oats off his 200 acres, thus giving 85 bushels per acre.

Mr. C. A. Jones was badly injured in a head-on collision on the G.T.P. near Hawkins, and was rushed to a hospital in the city.

20 YEARS AGO

The crop in the district is so heavy this year that it has retarded threshing operations. The grade is good, too.

Things are looking up, for the business men of town are advertising that all stores are going on a cash basis at Nov. 1st.

A number of the men from our district who signed up with the mounted rifles are reported to have been in action at the front in France.

A big Thanksgiving supper in the rink and the popular concert in the theatre which followed, saw a sum of over $200 available for the fund for Christmas gifts to the boys at the war.

Mr. E. (Bud) Cotton, left at the week-end for Calgary, he having signed up with the 13th C.M.R.'s there.

John Wright, of Chauvin, was fined $100 and given three months in jail for ill-treatment of his adopted son, named Ray Ingles.

Mr. Earl Clark purchased his first Ford car during the past week, and is enjoying his riding these days.

Michael Byrnes a member of the 66th battalion jumped from a freight train west of Wainwright and met instant death last week.

GREENSHIELDS

Mrs. Ross Valieu is now convalescing from an attack of rheumatism, but is still confined to the hospital.

Walter Jackson's were Sunday guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Plater.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Murray spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Lou Carl.

Don't forget the Bean Supper at Greenshields Hall, November 1st, under the auspices of the Greenshields' Ladies' Aid.

The Ladies' Aid meeting which was postponed from Wednesday on account of inclement weather, will be held at Mrs. Morrison's, October 16th.

Complimenting Mrs. D. Jackson (Grandma) on her 84th birthday, a party of about forty of her friends surprised her on Thursday, October 11th. She was presented with slippers and book as a token of their esteem. A pleasant time was spent in cards and after partaking of a delicious lunch, the party broke up around midnight.

We are sorry to hear that Mrs. G. Smith is confined to the hospital with a slight stroke and wish her a speedy recovery.

Miss M. Spence returned to Wainwright on Saturday accompanied by Miss Janet Carl, who is here on a leave of absence from her nursing duties in Edmonton.

Mr. and Mrs. Sonick spent last Thursday in Edmonton.

House Lake school was reopened on Thursday last.

Mrs. R. Ott wishes to announce that the first meeting of the Women's Institute Girls' Club will be held at her home on Saturday, October 19th at 2 p.m. All girls between the ages of eight and 18 years are welcome.

Greenshields Young Peoples Club opened on Monday, with a good attendance to organize for the winter's activities.

WEDDING BELLS

REDMOND—SCHIECK
On Monday afternoon last, Miss Mildred Schieck, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Theo. Schieck of Wainwright, became the bride of Mr. Albert J. F. Redmond, of Edgerton. The Rev. Wright solemnizing the nuptial vows.

Miss Irene and Mr. Gordon Schieck, sister and brother of the bride acted as attendants to the happy couple, for the ceremony which took place at the home of the bride's parents with a large gathering of relatives and friends present.

Mr. and Mrs. L. D'Albertansow, (the latter of whom is a sister of the bridegroom) were up from Chauvin for the celebration.

FALLA—O'NEILL
The pastor of the United church, Rev. T. E. Armstrong, B.A., conducted the marriage rites on Sunday afternoon last at the parsonage between Miss Margaret Esther O'Neill of Jarrow, and Mr. Chester Clifford Falla, of Sedgewick, the ceremony being witnessed by Miss Irma Tweedy, of Irma, who was bridesmaid, and Mr. Thos. O'Neill, brother of the bride who supported the groom.

At the close of the nuptial service the newly-weds motored west for their honeymoon. Upon their return they will take up residence in Sedgewick.

be held at her home on Saturday, October 19th at 2 p.m. All girls between the ages of eight and 18 years are welcome.

Information Please...

Human beings are markets. Every man, woman and child is a daily wantor of many things, most of which have to be bought from some retailer. But to sell, the seller must go to the market. It is sadly wrong if and when the seller waits for buyers to go to him. This means that the retailer who wants to supply many buyers must take his merchandise, in a figurative sense, to where buyers are assembled.

And the assembly place of buyers—men, women and children—is their newspaper. In the form of advertisements retailers display their wares. Every advertisement can be likened to a stall. These retailers' stalls get a close inspection of buyers. They are scanned to see if they show things of necessity or desire, and when the offerings of these stalls are made in accord with buyer's wants and needs, then sales are made.

The retailer who loses out is he who has no stall—no advertisement at this place of assembly. His absence from the market-place represented by the newspaper and its advertisements is advantageous to those who have advertisements in the newspaper.

The buying public wants its buying transactions made as easy as possible. It wants its time and its steps saved. It likes to find, in the comfort and peace of the home what sellers have to offer. In the home decisions are arrived at. Women and others plan their shopping and their purchases in advance. Their newspaper is their informer. Retailers who neglect to provide buyers with information in the form of advertisements in our newspaper miss many sales. It is never economy to be silent about what one has to sell.

The Southern Mountaineers

(Condensed from The Yale Review by Anne W. Armstrong)

Much nonsense has been written about the Southern mountaineers on whom the Tennessee Valley project, affecting, as it will, the destinies of many of them, has focused fresh attention. Nothing about this primitive folk seems too romantic or grotesque to be believed. They are referred to as our "temporary ancestors" by sociologists, and dubbed "hill-billies" by more frill-pant commentators. Novelists pit into their mouths a jargon which would puzzle any mountaineer as deeply as Hindustani. In legend their characters are primitive, yet fundamentally fine—even noble, their vices are only the picturesque, never the odious ones. A stalwart race they undoubtedly are. Yet conditions in recent years have worked them incalculable harm.

There have been moonshiners as long as there have been mountaineers. But where there was one before Prohibition, fifty grew under its unprecedented call for the moonshiner's product. In an extensive mountain district I am unable today to count more than two or three men, heads of families, who have not been "misked up with liquor," and of youths, none at all. With this enormously increased outside demand, drunkenness among the mountaineers themselves has grown proportionately, for in proofing his raw and potent product by the traditional method of repeated tasting, the mountaineer can hardly avoid getting drunk with every run he makes.

Nor have the mountain men alone been affected. Little boys, whose highest ambition is to reach the day when they can help "pappy" with the mash or keep a lookout for the "Law," fight each other savagely till they fall in the road in drunken stupor. Fathers batter sons, sons fathers, often within an inch of their lives, in the bloody Sunday afternoon brawls that have become a regular feature of the mountaineer life.

The lowering of social standards in the mountains is in some degree, due to the influence of visitors from the towns, who, penetrating farther into the mountains, and then "going native" as they call it, have furnished examples of dishonesty from which the mountaineers themselves recoil. As one exceptionally sober and reliable mountain man complained: "I've got to move somewhere else. The mountains ain't no place for a man to bring up his family sense them town folks has got to come here."

Among changes directly attributable to outside influence is the amazing growth of dishonesty in the mountains. The mountaineer, it is true, was often a sharper, though not so much from cunning as from a desire to exhibit his superior wit—what he gained by guile he was ready to present to his dupe the next day. But with the extension into the mountains of the Gospel of Things, through the catenades of the mail-order houses, which in almost every town have superseded the B&B, and especially with the advent of installment buying, which pointed a way to the mountaineer of getting something without a hatched range or a victrola, which he could use to a considerable time without paying for before it was taken back, the evading of just debts has become habitual, and down-right thieving is common.

But if the mountaineers are demoralized, they are not a degenerate people. It is almost impossible to exaggerate their love of life, their zest, their popular misadventures of their health to the contrary, nowhere in the world can you see more strapping men, rosier children, more blooming girls. The women alone, it is said, show signs of decline due to excessive child-bearing, with its consequent injuries. A single tough-fibered people who go faster up hill than down. And with all its demoralization, this folk retains much of the outside world has lost.

Here we have a people who are not yet slaves to the clock, who have, in general, a vague, comfortable sense of time, measuring it with unconscious poetry by sunset and sundown, by "dark of the moon" and "summer's crockwell." I have heard tourists speak scornfully of mountaineers who have seen, as they flared by in high-powered cars, sitting on their cabin porches, "doing nothing." It hardly occurs to these restless critics that here is a blessing which few of them enjoy themselves the ability to invite one's soul—that there has been attained what "Turgenev defined as heaven, the power of being lazy without remorse. Here is a corner of the country still untouched by the high-strung fury of living from which, however senseless much of it may be, the average town dweller is powerless to deliver himself.

Mountain men do not drop dead with worn-out hearts just when they have attained a ripe outlook on life. Save for accident, very generally they "live out their time." And the mountaineer is unheard of who ever expressed even the faintest dread of growing old. He accepts age, as he accepts death, in the completely philosophic spirit. Here people do not "pass away." They "die," quite simply.

The mountaineer's attitude toward death is only a part of his whole lack of desire, so prevalent in the outside world, to escape reality. The urge that prompts endless preoccupation with crossword puzzle, contract bridge, a radio going incessantly—such an urge is altogether absent from his existence. He no more needs such devices to dull the edge of reality than he needs an appetizer to eat his simple meals with gusto. It is not the shadow of life, he wants. Hard though it is, it is tragic though it may often be, he likes the tang and savor of it.

It must be admitted, to start with, that the mountaineer gets an enormous amount of fun out of making his illicit liquor, far more than he will ever get out of any orderly factor pursuit. Aside from being an open-air activity, the risk it entails the sense of adventure, satisfies an important demand in his wild nature. But, at that, he enjoys only less the "pulling fodder" making molasses from sorghum cane, house-raising, cornhoelings for a man unable, through illness, to tend his crop—the immemorial business of repeated testing, which are in company with his fellows.

This communal activity applies as well to the life of the women. The mountain women who complained after an experience of life in town, "Nothin' don't never happen there," express the profound conviction of all mountain people that their own lives are immeasurably more exciting than those outside. And this element of play in their existence is produced almost entirely out of the work they share: pilgrimages for wild berries, stringing beans to be dried for winter use, making apple butter or lye soap together. One who has witnessed a group of neighboring women washing their clothes side by side at the nearest "branch" or river heard the interchange of rough pleasantries that goes on, the constant shout of laughter, but only contemplate with sadness this wholehearted human gaiety giving way to the efficiency and solitude of the washing machine. In fact I know of no other place in this country today where one can find so much individual contentment as here among a people than whom we have, in all probability, none poorer or more illiterate.

But it is their generosity which especially distinguishes these people from others more highly "civilized." And generosity in a country where wealth may be measured by the fact that a child is often sent several miles to borrow a match or needle ful of thread, means giving not from one's surplus but often from one's bare necessities. To share the last of a sack of potatoes, the last "dust of meal," "trap on a body," as they say in the mountain.

Yet here people share with one another to the uttermost, and the supreme secret is meted out to a man who seeks to lay up treasures for himself, instead of contributing to the common good—"Looks like he might find something better to do with his money than put it in the bank." Here, in truth, is the literal carrying out of some of the precepts of Jesus but so strange is the spectacle, to most of us, as to be somewhat disconcerting.

When all their defects are revealed, these vital, intelligent fellow countrymen of ours still retain characteristics which the rest of us will do well to examine. If future emigrants to the southern mountaineers are alive to their opportunities, they will come with the realization that there is more, perhaps, for them to learn than to teach.

A.M.A. TO DEMAND BETTER PROV. HIGHWAYS

Action is being taken by the Alberta Motor Association to bring to the attention of the new provincial government immediately the need of improving highways of this province. At the request of branches of the organization, A. B. Mackay, president of the A.M.A., is preparing a brief which will "open the eyes" of the new administration to conditions which prevailed during the past summer.

Special attention will be directed to the condition of the highway between Calgary and Banff, and to the fact that Americans advised tourists from eastern Canada to keep away from Alberta owing to the bad condition of roads here.

Undoubtedly this adverse publicity had the effect of diverting a large volume of tourist traffic from this province in a year when a heavy volume was anticipated. This was all the more to be deplored in view of the fact that the Canadian Travel Bureau had expended a large advertising appropriation in urging American tourists to visit Canada during the past season.

All these facts will be impressed upon the government by Mr. Mackay's brief, which will be a forceful presentation on behalf of the motor organizations of this province and of interest to everyone here who either owns or drives a car.

Good highways form a subject of special appeal to the new members of the house, judging by the interest some have already shown. That makes it all the more reason for believing that when the next session of the legislature is held, strong representations being made now in the interests of better roads will have been impressed upon the legislators.

If we are to have war again, somebody should invent a way of having a bloodless one.

NEWS & VIEWS OF TOWN AND DISTRICT

Mr. and Mrs. J. Welch motored over to Big Valley at the week-end and report the roads in fair condition for the trip.

And the Elections being now all over for a term of years (?) we can get "down to business" in our individual efforts!

Mr. and Mrs. Dick Mackay and daughter Lola, were away on Sunday on a visit to their daughter Mrs. J. Mitchell at Lavo.

Having enjoyed his vacation from his duties at the depot, Mr. Geo. Glass is now back again "on the job."

Mrs. Alec Adams and children, who were away for a short stay with relatives at Round Hill arrived home last week-end.

Having been away in the east for the past few months, Mr. G. C. Tory returned home here last week.

Thursday last saw the return of the school children to their studies, after the buildings had all been closed down owing to the danger of infantile paralysis.

The youngsters are going through the doctors' hands these days for the purpose of vaccination and inoculation.

A couple of car loads of members of the Rebekah degree I.O.O.F. motored to Ryley last week for the purpose of being in attendance at lodge there during the visit of the president of the Rebekah Assembly of Alberta. A good crowd was in attendance and an enjoyable time spent by all.

Don't forget to get your winter's supply of coal at the Atlas yard, where you get the best coal for your money. Joe Welch.

A meeting of the Wainwright Agricultural Society is being called for November 1st, and all interested should make it a point to attend.

A carload of dandy horses were shipped east during the past week. Several of these were bought at a cost of $100.00 apiece.

Did you read Don Taylor's advertisement permanent waving. He is giving a special price till the end of the month.

Having sent condolences on the death of his queen to HM. the King of the Belgians, Mrs. Jules Bamelis is in receipt of a nice acknowledgment of her thoughtfulness in this regard.

Miss Willetta Armstrong started her school again at Edgerton on Monday morning, after a closure for paralysis there.

On Sunday next, special Thanksgiving services will be held at the United church, when the pastor will be in charge, and the music and messages will be appropriate to the occasion.

W. S. GOULET

The Tory garage is being put in shape for the cold weather this-day, receiving a dose of insulating shavings on the roof and walls.

On Saturday last, Drs. Maynes and Moore held a clinic at Edgerton when most trouble was dealt with among quite a number of patients from that district.

Mr. C. W. McBride, manager of the Bank of Montreal, was a visitor to the city last week to be present at the conference held there with Mr. Jackson Dods, general manager of that institution.

The bus driver from the city wishes a warning handed out to the boys in town that unless they keep from riding on the back of the bus their names will be handed to the police and trouble for them will ensue. It is too dangerous, boys, so take warning!

We regret to learn of the death of Mrs. Muncey at her home at Wetaskiwin. Some of her relatives drove over here to be present at the funeral.

Did anyone say "spuds"? Well, see the beauty in Washburn's Hardware; it should make a good meal for quite a number of Irishmen (!)

Pure Dutch Bulbs for Fall planting are now on sale at the Wainwright Pharmacy. See the advt. on page eight.

The Order of Odd Fellows paid no less than $4,351,382.26 in relief throughout the world during 1934, among a membership of 1,623,840.

The past week has seen the removal of Mr. R. T. Wright and family from their former residence on Sixth avenue to the Wade house further east on the same avenue.

One-Cent Sale for four days—Wednesday, Thursday, Friday, and Saturday, November 6-7-8 and 9, at the Wainwright Pharmacy Ltd.

Mr. Fred Watts is busy with the erection of a new barn on his farm north of town.

Mr. Tom Blason is now employed as a book-keeper at the Dupre garage.

Last week saw several carloads of sheep shipped east from the farm of Geo. Smith and Son, of Green-shields.

Mr. and Mrs. P. Kirkpatrick motored to the city on Sunday to pay a visit to their daughter Lillian, who is in hospital training there.

Mrs. Geo. Clark and family spent the week-end with friends at Hanna.

The Duke and Duchess of Kent welcomed the arrival of a son on Wednesday last. The new youngster is seventh in line for the heirdom to the British throne.

A newspaper office (in Coleman, to wit) was much exercised recently by a sheet of copy, the scrawl on which could not be read, although there was reason to believe it was important. The members of the editorial staff having failed to decipher it, it was submitted to the compositors, one of whom, after a critical scrutiny, observed that if he had his concertina he thought he could play it.

A number of members of the Masonic fraternity motored up to Tofield last week to attend the district meeting held there under the guidance of Bro. W. Chapman, D.D.G.M.

Mr. Harry Morris, of Vancouver, formerly connected with the B.C. Oil Company here, has returned home after a short visit here on business.

The Fall live stock sales of the Stock Breeders' association are announced to be held in Calgary on Wed., Thurs., and Fri., October 23-24-25.

While out on an early morning hunt last week-end, Mr. Lorne Mitchell had the misfortune to suffer an injury to his left eye, which was cut by glass from the door window being broken by a flying stick while driving.

Mr. Russell Corfield left this week for the coast, and Peter Blason left to continue his studies in Edmonton.

To replace his residence which was destroyed by fire some weeks ago, Mr. A. Jerram is now building again on the farm south of town.

Mr. E. O'Callaghan was over to Stettler on Sunday to pay a visit to friends there.

Mr. Jas. Street who farms in Hope Valley district, will operate the Wainwright livery barn this winter and is moving his family into the house on Queen street, formerly occupied by the Durrant family.

Last week-end saw the removal of the family of Mr. Earl Lee, who is now engaged in business at Ponoka.

Have you noticed the frost leaving a fringe over the eaves? That's a sure sign that heat is escaping through your ceilings. To prevent this expensive leak use insulating shavings from the Atlas yard. Drop in and have Joe Welch explain this saving.
